Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review
Thirty-second session
Geneva, 21 January-1 February 2019

Draft report of the Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review*

Eritrea

* The annex is being circulated without formal editing, in the language of submission only

Introduction

1. The Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review, established in accordance with Human Rights Council resolution 5/1, held its thirty-second session from 21 January to 1 February 2019. The review of Eritrea was held at the 12th meeting, on 28 January 2019. The delegation of Eritrea was headed by Mr. Tesfamichael GERHATU, Ambassador. At its 17th meeting, held on 31 January 2019, the Working Group adopted the report on Eritrea.

2. On 15 January 2019, the Human Rights Council selected the following group of rapporteurs (troika) to facilitate the review of Eritrea: Bahamas, Bangladesh and Rwanda.

3. In accordance with paragraph 15 of the annex to Human Rights Council resolution 5/1 and paragraph 5 of the annex to Council resolution 16/21, the following documents were issued for the review of Eritrea:

(a) A national report submitted/written presentation made in accordance with paragraph 15 (a) (A/HRC/WG.6/32/ERI/1);

(b) A compilation prepared by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) in accordance with paragraph 15 (b) (A/HRC/WG.6/32/ERI/2);

(c) A summary prepared by OHCHR in accordance with paragraph 15 (c) (A/HRC/WG.6/32/ERI/3).

4. A list of questions prepared in advance by Angola, Belgium, Germany, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Portugal on behalf of the group of friends on NMRFs, United States of America, Switzerland, Sweden, Slovenia and Spain was transmitted to Eritrea through the troika. These questions are available on the website of the universal periodic review.

I. Summary of the proceedings of the review process

A. Presentation by the State under review

5. The delegation stated that Eritrea emanated from a liberation struggle for human and people's rights and the dignity of every citizen was central to nation building. Unfortunately, in the past 2 decades the regional tension exacerbated by external existential threats has had a detrimental effect on the efforts of the country to ensure a dignified life for every Eritrean.

6. The transitional codes and the 178 proclamations and 125 legal notices, as well as six regional governance structures and the elected regional and local assemblies continued to serve as an important basis for exercising basic rights and participating in public affairs.

7. Eritrea worked to maximize the implementation of recommendations from the previous review. Unfortunately, this was shadowed by the mandates of the Commission of Inquiry and the Special Rapporteur on the situation of human rights in Eritrea which served ulterior political motives, with no dividend for the protection of human rights and negated the ideals of the universal periodic review mechanism. Those mandates have lost their credibility.

8. The Universal Periodic Review inter-sectoral National Coordinating Body mainstreamed the recommendations, coordinated and monitored their implementation through the Framework for Action (2015-2018). Eighty recommendations out of the 92 supported recommendations were fully implemented and the remaining 12 recommendations were partially implemented. More will be done in the future through a new national development plan.

9. The National Indicative Development Plan, 2014-2018, focused on accelerating socio-economic progress and eradicating poverty. Significant investment was made to advance socio-economic progress and bridge the development gap by focusing on vulnerable groups and areas, including women, children, persons with disabilities and rural communities. Efforts were also directed towards housing, utilities, transportation and communication in order to improve the standard of living.

10. Cultural rights were enshrined in all national laws, the National Charter, the Macro Policy and all other legal and institutional instruments, and practices. UNESCO has recognized the city of Asmara as a World Cultural Heritage for its futurist and modernist architecture.

11. Eritrea's food security efforts transcended linear targets of adequate cereal production commensurate with annual national demand. The irrigation system was expanded and farmers were empowered to increase household and national food security.

12. Eritrea achieved all the health-related Millennium Development Goals and remained committed to the Sustainable Development Goals. Outreach programmes and various campaigns including on vaccination were effective and infant mortality and maternal mortality rates were reduced.

13. Education was free from kindergarten to tertiary levels. The Ministry of Education continued its focus and substantial investment to improve access and quality of education, with special emphasis on rural communities and girls.

14. Advancements were made in the empowerment of women and girls, and in combating discriminatory cultural norms and harmful traditional practices. Grass root movements have become effective instruments in eradicating harmful traditional practices, such as female genital mutilation and early marriage. However, the need for greater coordination and capacity building to strengthen monitoring activities, as well as collection and management of pertinent data remained a challenge.

15. Reproductive health committees were established as a pilot project in five junior and senior secondary schools in each region, and awareness-raising campaigns were conducted for students on issues relating to gender, reproductive health and sexually transmitted diseases.

16. Yearly action plans were developed and focused on the protection of vulnerable children. Child well-being committees, established at sub-regional level, empowered communities and families across the nation.

17. The Ministry of Labour and Human Welfare implemented policies aimed at ensuring that no person below the age of 18 years, was engaged in an occupation that jeopardized his or her physical, mental, spiritual, moral or social development. The government continued to strengthen monitoring and inspection of the prevalence of child labour at workplaces.

18. Efforts to combat and eradicate trafficking in persons were intensified, including at the regional level through the African Union-Horn of Africa Counter Trafficking Initiative. Many people continued to fall victims to criminal networks of human traffickers. Eritrea has for years called for an independent international body to investigate and bring those responsible to justice.

19. A workshop to finalize a comprehensive national policy on persons with disabilities in May 2015, culminated in an outcome document that charted the needed course of action. Community-based interventions to reintegrate persons with disabilities were strengthened.

20. The Government has expanded access to justice, reviewed legal codes and consolidated the independence and integrity of the judiciary and the prosecution services. To promote efficiency and synergy of the three-tier court system as well as the military court and special court, digitalization of the courts' activities was in progress through software development, electronic data storing and intranet networking. Personnel employed in the justice system have received on-the-job trainings.

21. In May 2015, the new Penal and Civil Codes and their related Procedures were published. They incorporate provisions from international human rights instruments. A nationwide public awareness campaign to introduce the new laws was ongoing.

22. Eritrea was a secular state. Freedoms of thought, conscience, and belief were guaranteed in law. People were not persecuted because of their beliefs, and the government did not intervene in personal worship. Freedom of association was also protected by law and promoted in practice.

23. The Correctional and Rehabilitation Service worked to improve the conditions in all correctional facilities, guided by the Prisons Services Regulation. The UN Nelson Mandela Rules on the Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners were in the process of being translated into all Eritrean languages.

24. The Eritrean Police Force has instituted standards and rules to guide the actions and behaviour of the police and a number of human rights trainings were conducted.

25. In May 2016, Eritrea signed an agreement with the United Nations Country Team to support the implementation of human rights obligations, including the outcome of the universal periodic review. Eritrea was engaged with UN agencies, particularly with UNDP and UNICEF on child rights and labour issues. OHCHR conducted four technical missions to Eritrea. Eritrea has expanded cooperation with INTERPOL on the prevention of transnational crimes. Two training workshops on trans-national crime were held in Asmara by UNODC experts in 2018.

26. In 2014, Eritrea acceded to the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment and the Convention against Transnational Organized Crime and its Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children. The government was making an assessment on acceding to the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families, the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and the Protocol against Smuggling of Migrants by Land, Sea and Air.

B. Interactive dialogue and responses by the State under review

27. During the interactive dialogue, 89 delegations made statements. Recommendations made during the dialogue are to be found in section II of the present report.

28. The Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela highlighted strengthening of measures to improve people's standard of living in the areas of education, health and public services.

29. Yemen applauded Eritrea for the steps taken to attain peace and for the signing of peace agreements with neighbouring countries to enhance security and stability.

30. Zambia was concerned about the lack of juvenile justice system where children were tried as adults and placed in prisons with adults.

31. Ethiopia welcomed the lifting of the sanctions imposed by the Security Council, which will contribute to the efforts in promoting human rights.

32. Afghanistan appreciated the continued efforts taken by Eritrea to alleviate poverty, improve children's welfare system, promote quality education and to strengthen food security.

33. Algeria noted the efforts by Eritrea to improve the standard of living, particularly in the areas of housing, public services, and access to drinking water.

34. Angola welcomed efforts to attain peace, notably through the normalisation of bilateral relations with neighbouring countries, which lead to the lifting of sanctions by the Security Council.

35. Argentina took positive note of the Peace and Cooperation Declaration signed by Eritrea and Ethiopia in July 2018, which constituted a step towards peace, security and development.

36. Armenia encouraged Eritrea to grant the human rights mechanisms access to the country to assess the human rights situation in relation to torture and freedom of opinion.

37. Australia was concerned by reports of torture and arbitrary detention. It urged Eritrea to fulfil its obligations under international human rights instruments.

38. Austria was concerned about the continued prevalence of female genital mutilation and encouraged Eritrea to strengthen efforts to eliminate the practice.
39. Egypt noted that the political developments in Eritrea contributed to its stability. It also noted the National Indicative Development and efforts to ensure the independence of the judiciary and the rule of law.
40. Bangladesh identified areas that required attention in promoting human rights, including the national service for an indefinite period and the provision of adequate housing for all.
41. Belgium stated that the membership of Eritrea in the Human Rights Council should be an incentive to strengthen its engagement with international human rights mechanisms.
42. Benin noted that since the previous review, Eritrea had implemented programmes for the realisation of economic, social and cultural rights.
43. Zimbabwe highlighted initiatives that had been taken by Eritrea to transform agricultural practices to ensure food security and reduce poverty. It also noted the eight-year compulsory basic education policy.
44. Botswana noted legislative and policy developments undertaken by Eritrea since the last review. It welcomed political developments, particularly peace initiatives with Ethiopia, Somalia and Djibouti.
45. Bulgaria encouraged Eritrea to take steps for the effective implementation of the 1997 Constitution. It noted that the Government had worked to ensure food security, health-care and social services.
46. Burundi welcomed the efforts made by Eritrea to ensure equal access to health care and to improve the quality of health care services.
47. Canada was troubled by the restrictions imposed on the exercise of fundamental rights, including the freedoms of expression and religion.
48. Chile commend Eritrea for signing the Declaration of Peace and Cooperation with Ethiopia and Somalia in 2018 and also for its sustained cooperation with the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights.
49. China expressed its appreciation to Eritrea for the progress made in the promotion and protection of human rights. It appealed to the international community to provide constructive assistance to Eritrea..
50. Costa Rica was troubled by the increasingly high number of women, girls and unaccompanied children that have fled Eritrea to avoid national service.
51. Croatia expressed the hope that the new atmosphere of peace and stability will bring an end to the indefinite military service. It commended Eritrea for efforts in the areas of education, and gender equality, amongst others.
52. Cuba welcomed the initiatives to improve the quality and access to various services, as well as the infrastructure in order to reduce poverty.
53. Czechia regretted that at the previous review, Eritrea support only one of the five recommendations made by Czechia. It appreciated improvements in areas such as education and health care.
54. Democratic People's Republic of Korea noted a number of legislative measures, the National Gender Action Plan and the fight against human trafficking, despite many challenges.
55. Denmark stated that the Convention against Torture Initiative was ready to assist Eritrea in combating torture. The protection of women was crucial for sustainable socio-economic societies.
56. Bahrain welcomed initiatives to combat poverty and child malnutrition for children under five years of age and other efforts in the health sector.

57. The delegation of Eritrea stated that Eritrea was committed to building trust and cooperation with implications to regional peace, security, and development. National development was premised on encompassing macroeconomic stability, comprehensive reorganization of government institutions, and the consolidation of the political process of nation building.

58. The national charter was the political map that drove the strategies, policies, and structure of nation building and continued to set the principles and guidance for the state governance system. In 2015, the process of drafting a new Constitution commenced and was ongoing.

59. The death penalty was an applicable sentences for serious criminal offenses. It was not applicable for convicted persons who were under the age of 18 years when the offences had been committed and for women with nurturing children. The President has the power to commute the death penalty to rigorous imprisonment. For many years, there has been a de facto moratorium on the death penalty.

60. The allegation that political prisoners or prisoners of conscience were detained because they had called for reform and democratic election and greater respect for human rights was factually unfounded. Those cases related to national security.

61. The right to express and disseminate opinions must be exercised within the law and in full respect for others. It may therefore be restricted in respect for the rights and reputation of others, and for the protection of national security, public order, public health, and morals.

62. Eritrea has a rich history of religious tolerance, coexistence and harmony in a turbulent region. The government has obligations to ensure the centuries old religious tolerance and harmony was not disturbed by externally induced new trends of Islamic or Christian fundamentalism. Jehovah's Witnesses have forfeited their legal status when they refused to recognize the government after liberation and opposed the April 1993 referendum determining the independent status of the nation after 30 years of national liberation struggle. The public media has been strengthening to cultivate progressive thinking, transformational culture, and reliable information instrumental to knowledgeable society. Radio programs were available in all Eritrean languages and TV programs broadcasts in several languages. Print media was also emerging as an important dimension of this development.

63. Estonia was concerned by the lack of independence of the judiciary, the lack of clarity of the status of the Constitution, the indefinite national service and restrictions on freedom of expression.

64. The Plurinational State of Bolivia welcomed community-based interventions on structures, which were essential for the implementation of recommendations Eritrea had receive during the second cycle.

65. France noted the efforts made in the areas of education and health, but was concerned by lack of respect for civil and political rights.

66. Georgia encouraged Eritrea to take further steps in the implementation of recommendations. While noting efforts to ensure gender equality, it urged to Eritrea to align relevant legislation with CEDAW.

67. Germany welcomed the opening of the border with Ethiopia. It remained concerned about the human rights situation, in particular for people in detention.

68. Greece noted the positive steps taken since the previous review and expressed the hope that the Peace and Friendship Agreement between Eritrea and Ethiopia with enhance human rights protection.

69. Haiti congratulated Eritrea for being elected to the Human Rights Council. It hoped that the closer relationship with Ethiopia would enhance human rights in Eritrea.

70. Honduras congratulated Eritrea for efforts to reduce poverty and for the voluntary pledges made by Eritrea.

71. Iceland hoped that the peace agreement with Ethiopia would have a positive impact on the human rights situation.

72. Hungary expressed the hope that the establishment of peace would allow Eritrea to move forward on human rights. The implementation of human rights treaties could transform the country.
73. India appreciated steps to enhance the quality of life, and the decline in HIV/AIDS cases. It welcomed the policies to in the areas of education.
74. Indonesia welcomed the Eritrea-Ethiopia-Somalia Tripartite Peace and Cooperation Agreement. It commended accession to the CAT.
75. Islamic Republic of Iran appreciated the initiatives taken to reduce poverty, improve the standard of living, promote children's rights, and prevent human trafficking.
76. Iraq expressed the hope that the peace declaration signed by Eritrea, Somalia and Ethiopia would allow regional peace and development.

91. Mozambique expressed appreciation for the Peace and Cooperation Declaration between Eritrea and Ethiopia and the Eritrea and Somalia Peace and Cooperation Agreement.

92. Myanmar congratulated Eritrea on the presentation of its national report and on its implementation of the recommendations from the previous review.

93. The delegation stated that, national service must be put in a context. Following a long liberation struggle, Eritrea had to cope with threats to its sovereignty and territorial integrity. Consequently, national service was extended beyond 18 months. However, the assertion that there was indefinite national service was out of context and unacceptable. Equally unacceptable - is the claim that national service constituted forced labour. Forced labour - is a criminal offence while national service - is part of the overall system of upbringing a new generation alongside the national educational system and the annual summer work programme for students important as an introduction to community service.

94. Over the last 20 years, continuous demobilization has been taking place. A new remuneration system was introduced which substantially increased the salary of the civil service and the latest recruits for national service are already integrated into the system and will continue.

95. Eritreans returning from abroad were not imprisoned and efforts were made to facilitate their voluntary return.

96. There were grass roots movements in many sub-regions of Eritrea, who have declared a zero tolerance for female genital mutilation and cutting and early marriage.

97. A framework for 2019-2021 considers the membership of Eritrea in the Human Rights Council has been drafted and will be seriously implemented. It covers the mainstreaming of human rights in national development, as well as engagement and international cooperation on human rights issues. Eritrea will work in collaboration with other members to maintain the effectiveness and credibility of the council.

98. The Netherlands remained concerned about among other things the national service and punitive measures Eritreans faced upon their return after having left the country illegally.

99. Nigeria appreciated Eritrea's commitment to upholding human rights and welcomed its initiatives to eliminate poverty and combat malnutrition, which would further enhance socio-economic well-being.

100. Norway recognized some positive steps taken by Eritrea, in particular with regard to women's rights, but remained gravely concerned about the overall human rights situation.

101. Oman stated that the national report highlighted the country's interest in protecting human rights and noted the integrated strategy for the social sector and the efforts to bring about peace in the Horn of Africa.

102. Pakistan appreciated the efforts made in education, health, political participation, improvement of the justice system and food security. It welcomed the peace process with Ethiopia.

103. The Philippines acknowledged the efforts made to raise awareness and advance the protection of women, girls and children from female genital mutilation, underage marriage and human trafficking.

104. Portugal hoped that the peace agreement with Ethiopia placed human rights at the centre, thereby guaranteeing peace and security.

105. The Republic of Korea remained concerned about reports of human rights violations related to the indefinite conscription into the military and the recurring censorship of media.

106. The Russian Federation called on Eritrea to continue to actively work to improve the conditions in the penitentiary system and to revise the legislation on the freedom of the religion.

107. Rwanda welcomed the recent regional developments that will positively contribute to the promotion and protection of human rights in Eritrea.

108. Saudi Arabia commended the important steps made in the field of care and support for persons with disabilities.

109. Senegal welcomed the Declaration of Peace and Cooperation between Eritrea and Ethiopia, which inaugurated a new dynamic of peace, security and development in the Horn of Africa.
110. Serbia commended the efforts made by Eritrea to improve the standards of living in the areas of housing, utilities, transportation and communications.
111. Seychelles noted the finalisation of the National Child Policy, the commitment to provide universal primary education, and the contribution to the peace process in the Horn of Africa.
112. Singapore acknowledged the efforts made by Eritrea to enhance access and quality of education and improve the public health system.
113. Slovakia encouraged Eritrea to develop a strategy for the implementation of the National Policy on Children. It expressed concern on the indefinite national service.
114. Slovenia was concerned by reports on the prevalence of torture, deplorable conditions in detention centres and restrictions placed on human rights defenders and civil society organisations.
115. South Africa welcomed the 2018 Peace and Cooperation Declaration between Eritrea and Ethiopia and was encouraged by efforts to promote the well-being of children.
116. Spain congratulated Eritrea on the ratification of several human rights instruments, its efforts to abolish female genital mutilation and its engagement with the international community.
